

Rajgir

The statue has been installed higher than 16 metre radius pedestals in middle of lake Ghora Katora. It has been made from 45,000 cubic foot pink sand stone. Ghora Katora is normal lake surrounded by five hills. The area all over lake and statue has been made into attractive park.

Rajgir

Rajgir has got the name from Raj Griha meaning the abode of the king. The city was the capital of the mighty Magadha Empire during the period of Lord Buddha's lifetime when Patliputra was not formed.

Rajgir is 14 kms from Nalanda. Rajgir is one of the most important tourist places in India. Rajgir has its own very scenic beauty surrounded by five holy hills, the picturesque little town of Rajgir is important for Buddhists as well as Jains. Here the two rock-cut caves were the favourite retreats of the Buddha and it was on this hill that he preached two of his most famous sermons.

Rajgir known for :

Shanti Stupa

This is an immense white structure situated on the top of the hill Ratnagiri and is the main Buddhist attraction at Rajgir. This houses four gold statues representing Buddha's birth, enlightenment, teaching and death.

Gridhakuta Hill

Gridhakuta Hill was the favourite place of Lord Buddha, where he delivered many discourses after he attained enlightenment. It was here that he gave two important sutras the Lotus Sutra and the Prajnaparamita.

Ancient Ruins

There are many sites including ruins of the ancient city, caves, and places associated with Ajatasatru and king Bimbisara can be seen here. Here one can see the Ajatasatru's fort built in 5th century BC where the emperor had imprisoned his father.

Saptarni Cave

It was here, where the first Buddhist council was held after Buddha attained Nirvana. Also a Thai, Burmese Temple, and a modern Japanese temple can be seen here.
